

Recreation Visits of National Parks in the Four Corner States

By Vasylyna Ganushchak

Sources: NaturalEarthData.com
NationalParkService.Org

Recreation Visits of National Parks in The Four Corner States

by Vasylyna Ganushchak

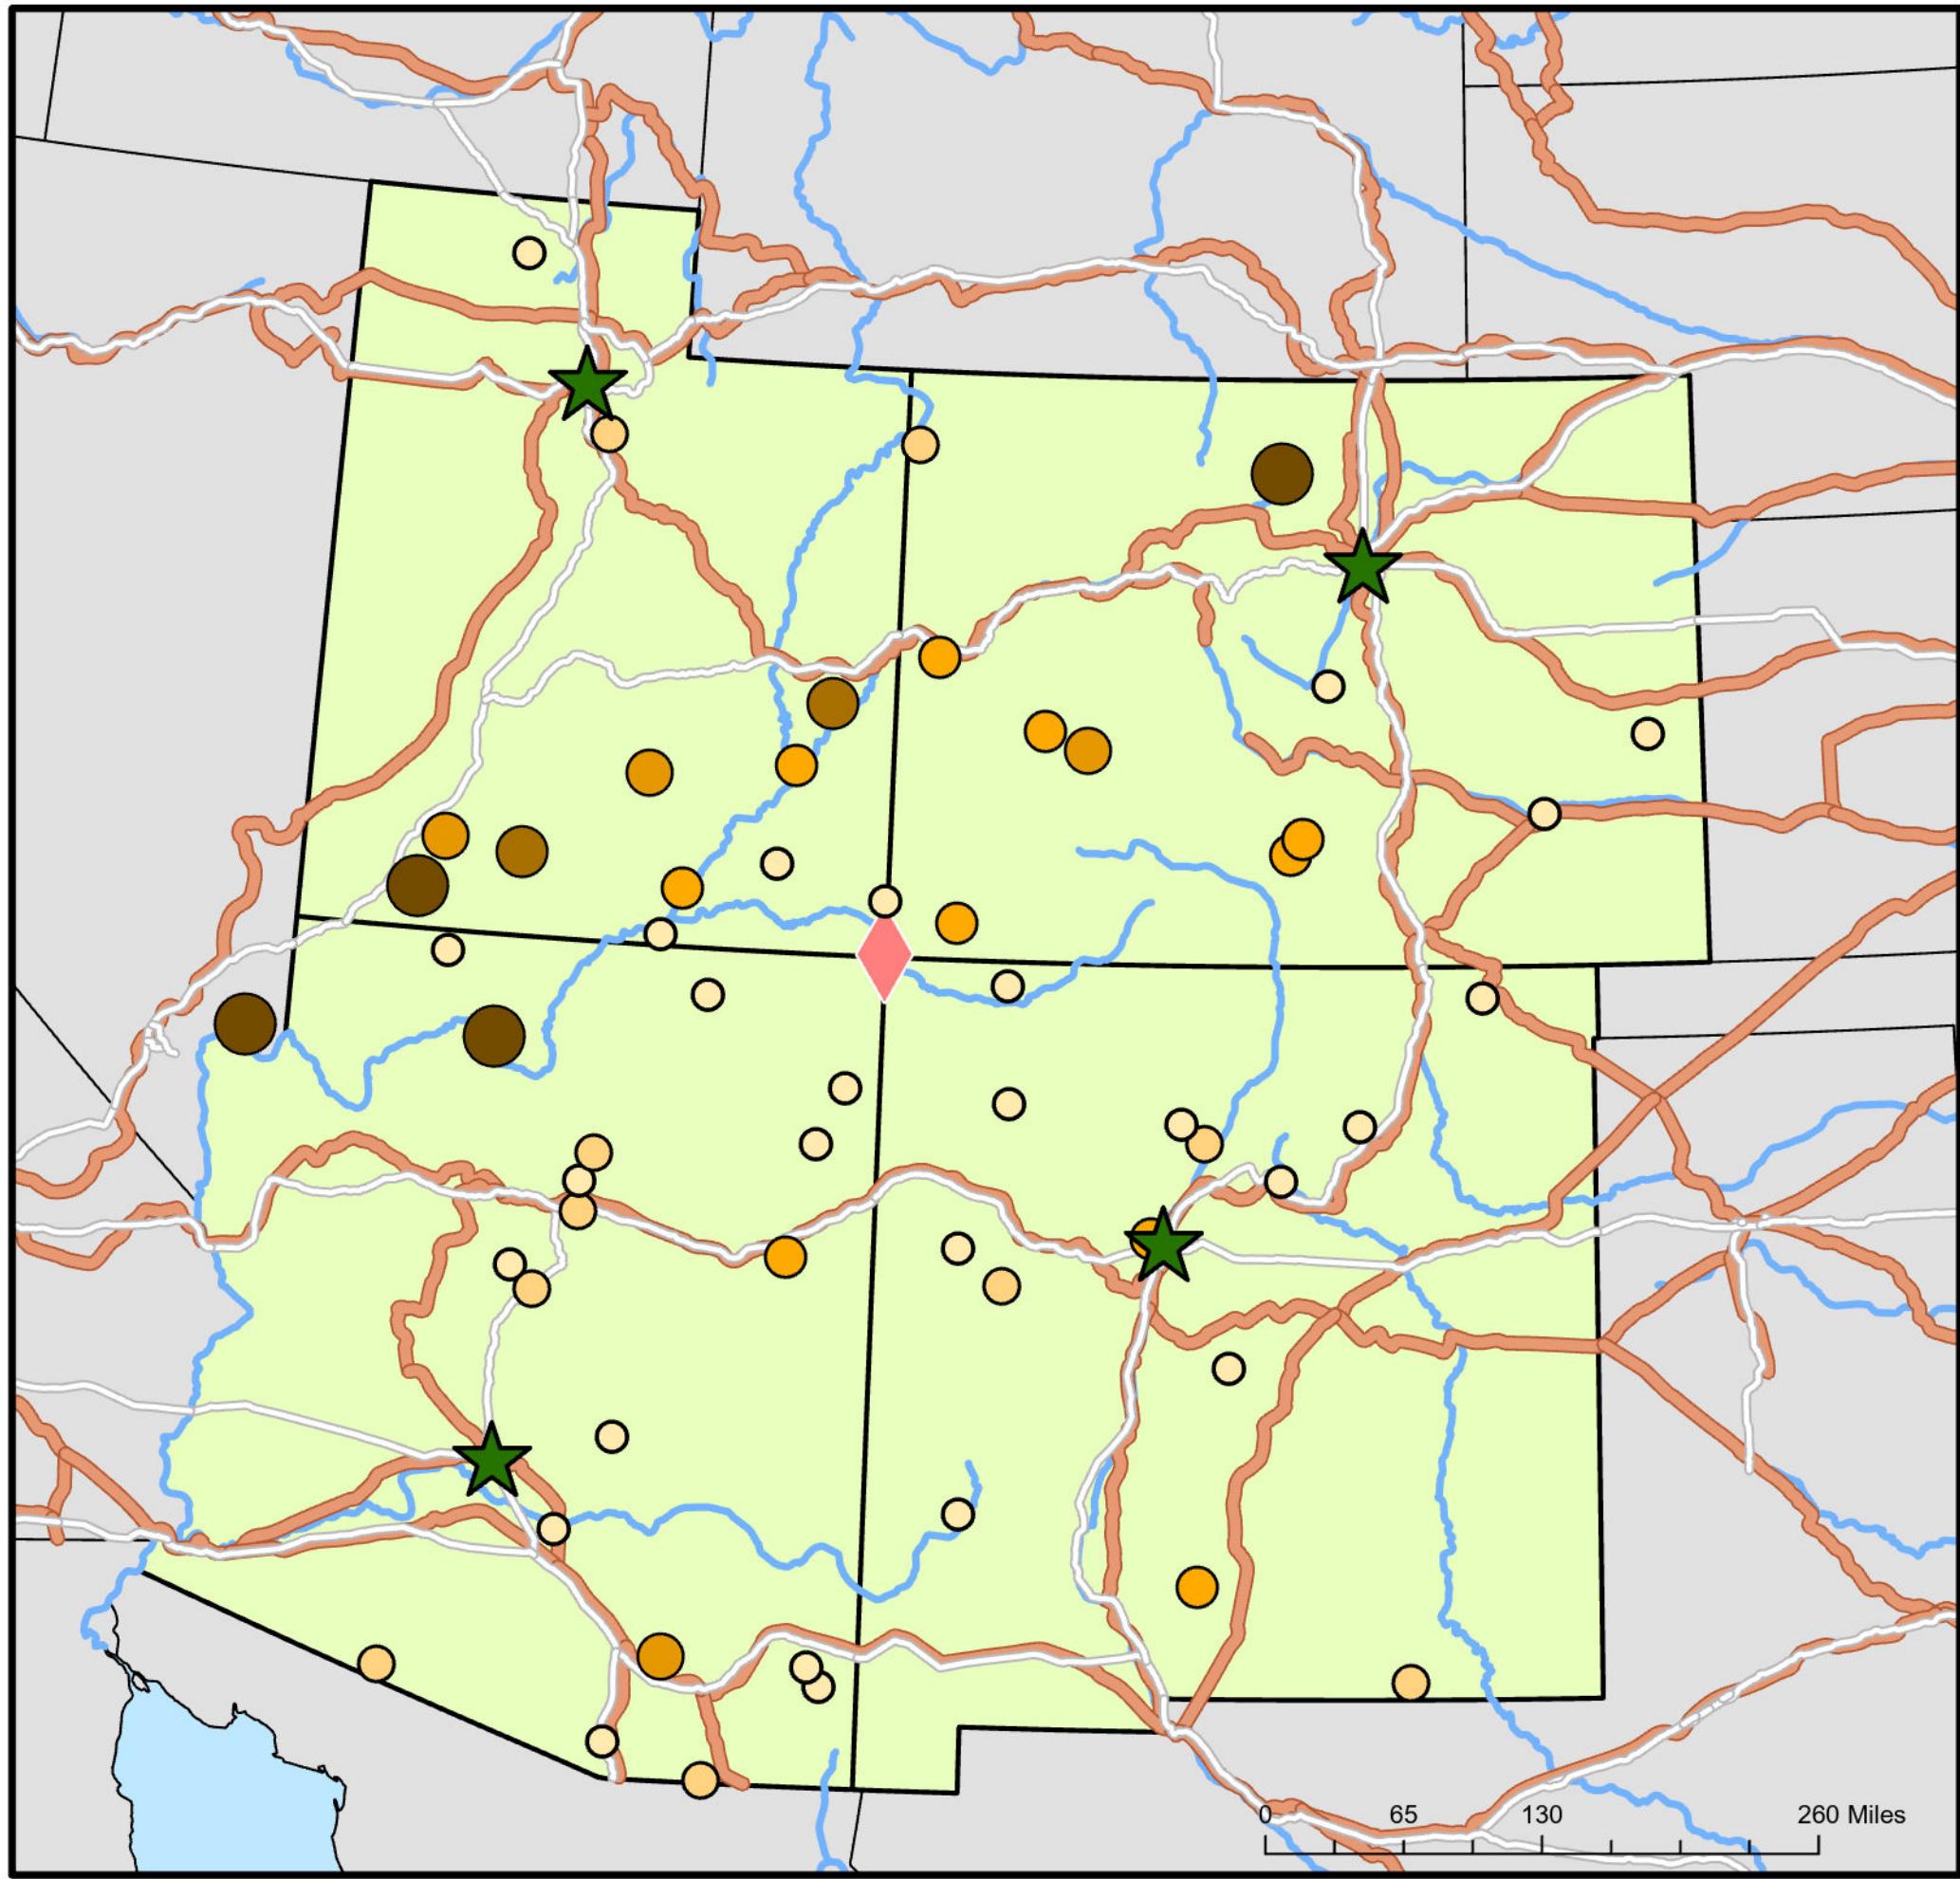

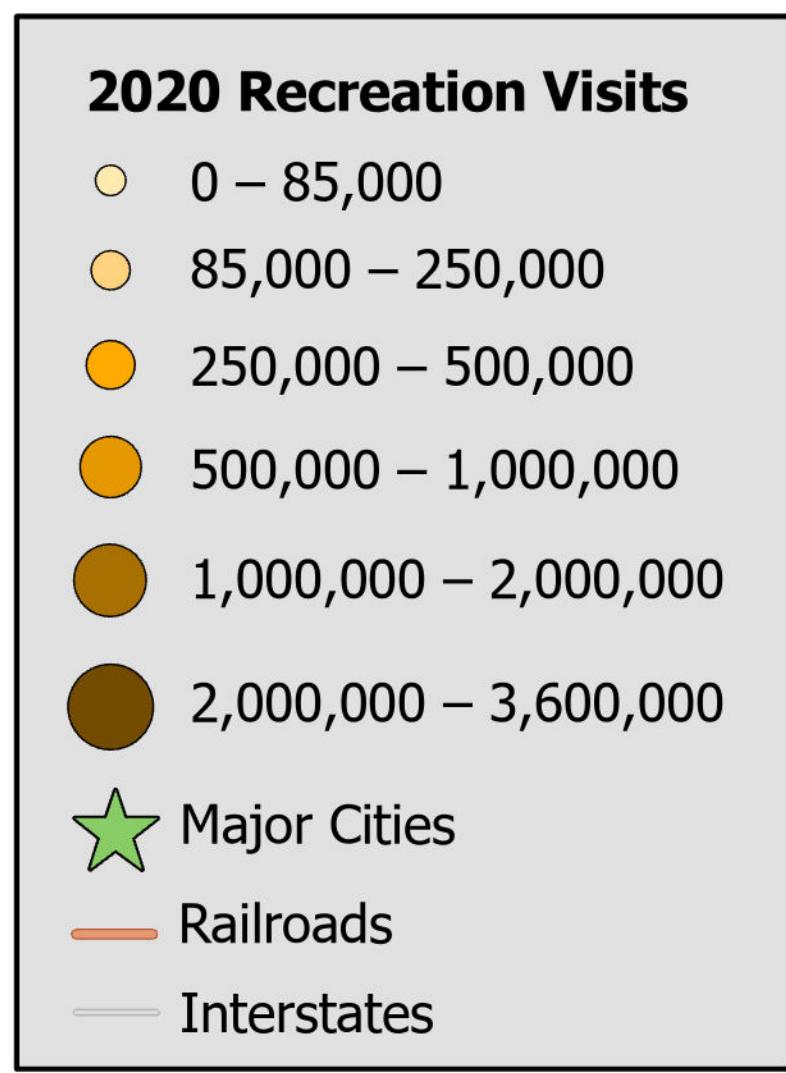

Source: Natural Earth Data

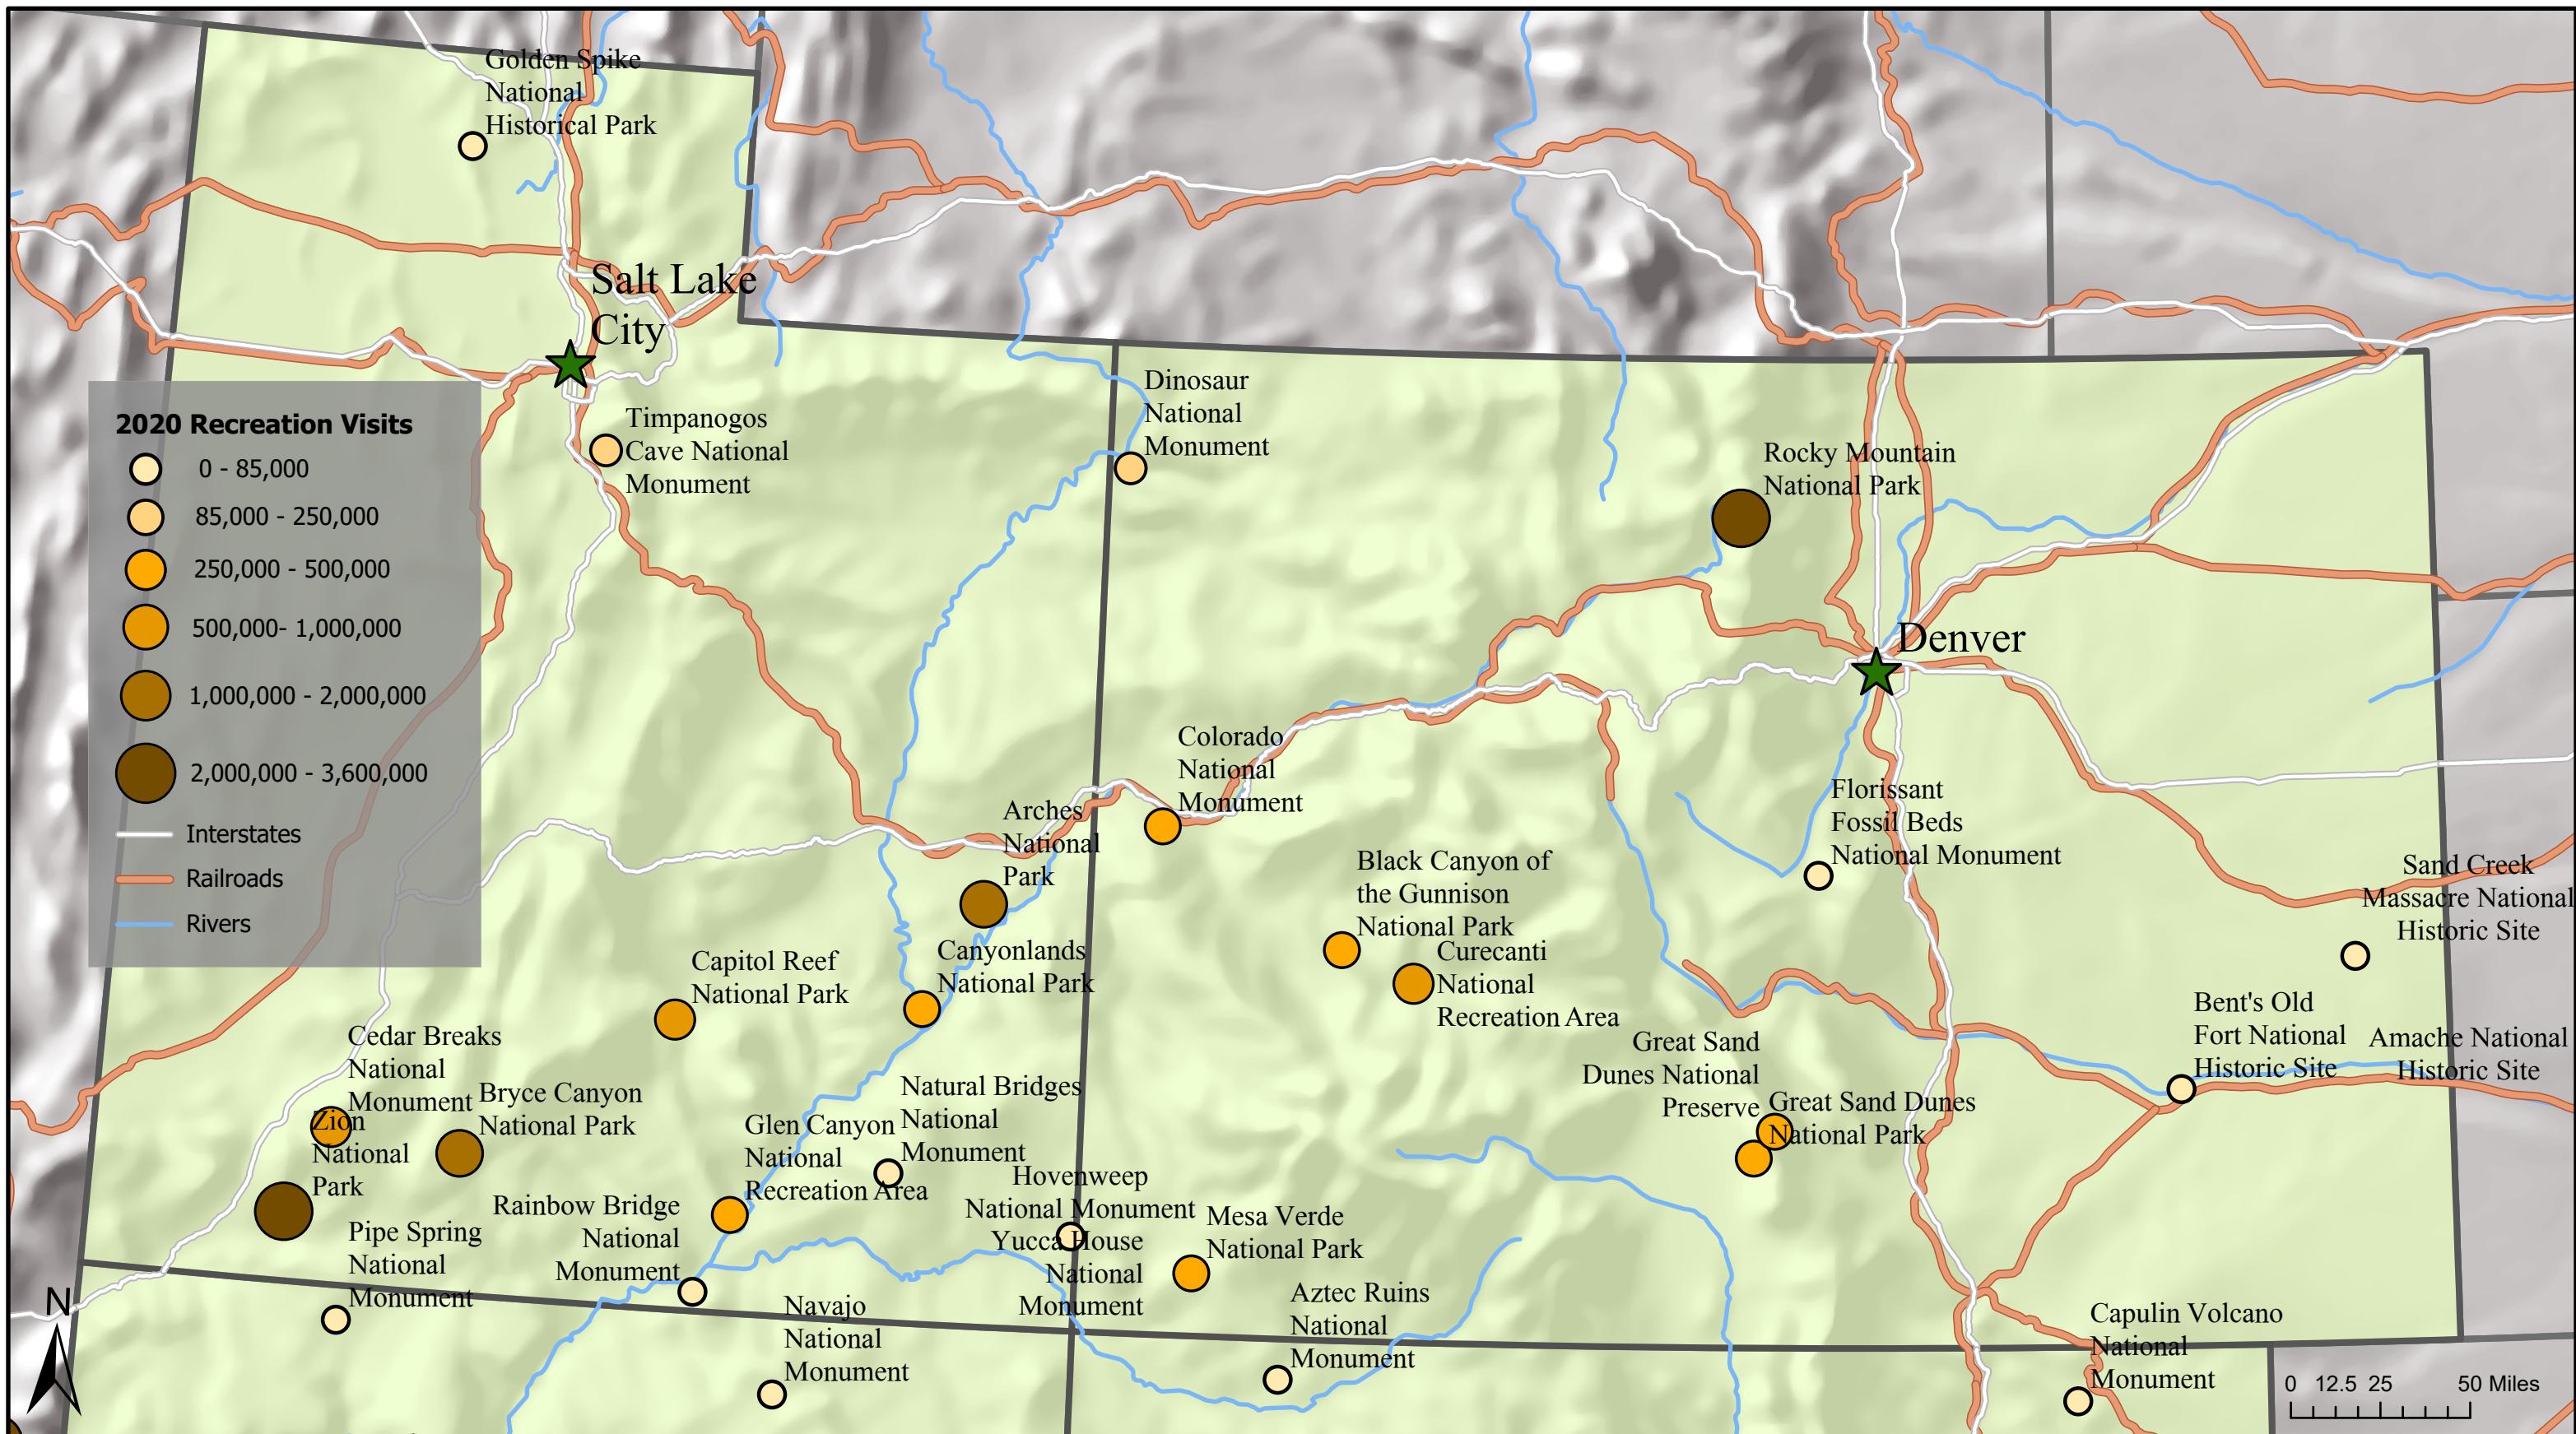

The Four Corner states are a cultural area of the United States. At the diamond pictured for reference, there is a National Monument where all 4 states meet. You can stand in 4 states at once! These states are home to important resources such as the Colorado River and Snowpack.

The United States of America is home to about 400 National Park sites. It has a variety of National Parks and National Monuments that are available for recreation, vacation or just a quick visit. Activities include hiking, camping, fishing, paddle boarding and biking. They offer beautiful scenery and a place for true relaxation. I looked at visitation number for the 4 corner states, pictured below. I decided to do this area because I have studied these states in regards to resource management as well as have spent a good amount of time road-tripping within them.

Utah and Colorado Recreation Visits

Arizona and New Mexico Recreation Visits

